

Time for Paddington

Connecting Companies to Communities

Established in 2004, Time for Paddington connects the worlds of corporate and community. We deliver positive outcomes for some of London's most demanding and successful businesses, placing over 800 employee volunteers in more than 70 different projects each year.

Range of programmes

With over 60 different volunteering opportunities a year, you can choose from a wide range to make an impact locally.

- Placing your staff as reading buddies or to support book and scrabble clubs in primary schools.
- Coordinating gardening and decorating team challenges for your staff in charity premises and supported housing schemes.
- Running events in collaboration with charities and social enterprises, supporting elderly people, students or homeless people.
- Matching your donations of surplus furniture, IT, office equipment or business clothing, to local charities.
- Supporting charities in creating their social media, marketing or business strategies.
- Delivering CV workshops and mock interviews for local unemployed people.

How we work

We provide effective Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR), delivering tangible benefits for the company, the volunteers and the community. We offer an end-to-end service, brokering volunteering, skills, fundraising and donations.

Time for Paddington works with your in-house community or CSR team, introducing you to community partners, whose work touches every aspect of need; including health, housing, the elderly, mental health, young people, families and homelessness.

We will help you devise and put into practice your community strategy, developing and managing opportunities with you and your colleagues, and monitoring and reporting your staff activities.

Due diligence is undertaken on all community partners, and we will ensure that measures are in place to provide the reporting and evaluation your company needs.

If you cannot see a programme that meets your company's needs, we can create it for you.

Time for Paddington is funded by members of Paddington Partnership. For companies outside Paddington, and for those who are not members of the Partnership, a small charge is made to use the services of Time for Paddington.

“Vodafone is proud to support The Paddington Partnership and its important role in the community. Their advice and support continues to be of invaluable benefit to Vodafone in executing our community programme.”

Andrew Dunnett, Director at Vodafone Foundation
